

Bakhtawar

This story is about a 51 years old Bakhtawar living in Village Jhok Machi Gharbi with his wife, daughter and son. He is the sole earning member of his poor family. His source of income is associated with selling toffees and chocolate while riding a bicycle in the village. His daily income is approximately Rs100 per day. He was surviving in this poor economic condition till floods took his home, the only comfort in his life.

SEED shelter project assessment team visited his home with ABG members and selected him for size 14'X14' shelter and because of his extreme poverty was exempted from providing a share in the construction of the shelter. Construction of a shelter posed a real and serious challenge for him and is now extremely happy to move into his own house. Bakhtawar is happy and is grateful to all those who supported him during this tragic turmoil in his and his family's life.
